Tara's Takes

my youngest, has mastered emptying the recycling and rearranging office supplies in mom's desk drawers.

I may never be able to find my scissors.

If you are in Per's office, there is a very unique paper clip holder that Olivia made him one day when she was hanging out at dad's office in Marshall when she was probably Ben's age. As she has gotten older — more involved in high school activities, and most importantly, gotten her license — she's not hanging out at dad's office much. But she does stop in to say hi. Now those days will be replaced by my tribe spending Saturday's at work with mom. They will be the ones you'll see with bikes parked outside the office. They will be the ones that have a drawer in my office for coloring books and crayons. And to be honest, I am so happy to raise them in this community, while working at the Headlight Herald — one of the best weekly papers in the state.

I may have been part of the newspaper industry since I graduated college, but I only moved to Tracy a few years ago. It was the best move of my life. The community has been so welcoming. The friends my kids have made are fantastic. The community organizations are constantly working to make Tracy even better. The many things I haven't yet discovered — like the early morning crowd at the Multi Purpose Center.

Brady has a paper route. He delivers six days a week. Whether there is school or not, he is up at 6 a.m. working. When we finish our route, we go past the Multi Purpose Center. There are always lights on and a crowd gathered. He talks about stopping in there some day just to visit. Then Per made the mistake of telling him they serve pancakes. Now he wonders if it's pancake day each time we pass. Someday, Kim, when a teenage boy shows up asking for pancakes, you can blame Per.

These small things make Tracy the community it is — truly a great place to live. And now, Per and I will be continuing the local newspaper to keep this great place connected.

We cannot say thank you enough to Seth and Jim for entrusting us with such an institution in Tracy. To the many people who have helped us make this dream a reality — RuthAnn with the Small Business Development Center, Jeff Carpenter with the EDA, Dennis Moore — we are truly indebted to you for your help. To our amazing staff at Above The Fold Publishing, LLC, we will strive every day to make this a great place to work. To our mentors in the industry who have encouraged both of us throughout our career, thank you for believing in us when we didn't believe in ourselves, for pushing us outside our comfort zone, for making us strive to be our best. And finally, to our readers and community members, thank you for your support you have shown so far. You are the reason we both live for this paper.

We love our jobs and look forward to continuing the great paper that the Headlight Herald has been for so long.

Here's to the next chapter in our lives, or in our case, the next edition!
